Tree Identification Posts

Elizabeth Dubois was a girl member for 13 years and has now become a Lifetime Member of Girl Scouts. She is currently a freshman at Missouri Southern State University where she is studying middle school science education.

Elizabeth's Gold Award project focused on spreading more knowledge about nature to her community. She found that member of her community enjoyed the trees but did not know much about them. She created "Tree Identification Posts" which provided its name, how much sun or shade it required, and how fast they grow. Elizabeth was able to encourage children to think more about why trees are important and how they affect their environment.

Elizabeth has worked with the Raymore Park and Recs maintenance team to create more tags for the community park and other parks around as well. She hopes to teach her audience how we benefit from trees and how we should treat them to create a better place of living.

Because of Girl Scouts... I know I can accomplish anything.
